

Hi [Insert your name],

Please see below for my comments regarding client responses in red:

1. User "First Name44 Last Name44" was provisioned a role different than requested.
 - a. Please provide the associated IT ticket for the event user being provisioned. Attached. It is noted that the user's job function was "Sr. Software Engineer" (correctly provisioned in Intacct). The IT ticket was initially submitted with incorrect details. The correction was noted in the comments section of the attached ticket. This is great news, which leads to the sample being a false positive deficiency. Please add the details and the background clients provided into our workpaper with details.
 - b. Is there a job function change since the user has joined the company? No. The user has not changed the job function. Refer to 1.a.
 - c. Could you please advise the differences between the role "Outsourced Labor" and "Sr. Software Engineer"? Which role holds the more privileged access within Intacct? They are different. Sr. Software Engineer holds the more privileged access within Intacct. Refer to 1.a.
2. User "First Name77 Last Name77" was provisioned to the system before approval was in place.
 - a. Please provide the associated IT ticket for the event user being provisioned. Attached.
 - b. If not provided by support a., is there any reason that the user was provisioned before the approval was obtained? This is a management oversight. The approval shall be provided before the user provisioning in the target system. Agreed as a deficiency. The client's response has confirmed that the sample is a positive deficiency. Great work on catching it!
 - c. Have the user logged into the system before the approval was obtained? Is there a system log available to be provided? The user did not log in to Intacct between the two key dates. Please see attached for the system access log. Luckily, there is no risk impact resulting from this deficiency. Please include the root cause and the impact results in your final presentation. Since a deficiency is called out, please inform the client that the sample size will be increased in our next phase of testing. Furthermore, we would need to assess if there are any compensating controls in place, and whether the compensating controls are operated effectively. I took a quick look, and it seems like we have both the periodic control, and also the privileged account control in place and operated effectively in our audit period. Below are the control descriptions. Let's ensure we include these in our final result delivery.

- Quarterly Access Review: Management performs a periodic review of users and system/generic accounts to ensure that access rights are appropriate. Accounts marked for updates are appropriately executed.
- System Access Control: Administrative rights are restricted to appropriate and authorized individuals.
